They are so well known that they

ONE OF THE SADDEST SIGHTS!
British prisoners write daily imploring help for their Allied comrades who stand miserably penned watching with our men every parcel. They say, "One of the saddest sights is the look of the poor fellows for whom there is no parcel when those are given out." Naturally there is little to spare for these poor starving creatures who pick up the refuse thrown away and lick out the tins, though our brave fellows must often mercifully deprive themselves, as they say, "We do our best for them." THE IRISH TIMES.
TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1918.

The State of Ireland.

In his letter to Mr. Solliott, which we published yesterday, the Chief Secretary for Ireland said:

"I am not surprised that at this period, when, as I believe, there is sound reason to anticipate fruitful results from the labours of the Irish Convention, there should be renewed and unreasonable endeavours to disturb and alarm the people of Ireland. The object of such transactions is too obvious for any disguise."

These two sentences contain two assurances for which all well-disposed Irishmen will be grateful. In the first place, Mr. Duke—speaking from intimate knowledge, and, as we must assume, with a full sense of responsibility—tells us that we may expect good results from the Irish Convention. In the next place, he tells us that his Executive is resolved to crush the present conspiracy to defeat the purpose of the Convention. That inference from his words is inevitable. Mr. Duke admits that a "systematic" campaign is on foot against the peace of Ireland, and that its object is "too obvious for any disguise." The authors of the conspiracy want to kill the Convention by reducing the country to a state of chaos. Mr. Duke, as the head of the Irish Executive, has two great duties—one accidental, the other innate in his office. The one is to help the Convention to find an Irish settlement; the other is to maintain law and order in the country. His admission that the Convention is being intimidated, and that law and order are being challenged by the forces of anarchy, constitutes a definite promise that he will fulfil both duties at any cost. No other conclusion is possible, for Mr. Duke is an honourable and high-minded man. Recognising his duty, he would not stay in office for another half-hour if he were unwilling, or felt himself powerless, to fulfil it. We are sure now of Mr. Duke's intention. We have yet to learn—and we must learn immediately—whether his Executive has the necessary qualities of decision and courage. The situation is urgent. Crime follows rapidly on the heels of crime. We report to-day a murderous attack on two policemen, and the violent robbery of £8,500 from a bank manager, in County Clare. Prisoners of all classes continue to enter the front doors of His Majesty's jails and to walk out at the back. Last week a man who had been sentenced to a year's imprisonment, with hard labour, at Cork, for the theft of £8 10s. from a public-house went on "hunger-strike," and was released before he had served a fortnight of his sentence.

If the Irish Executive means to keep Mr. Duke's promise, it must repair without delay the results of its recent timidity and vacillation. It must begin by abolishing the fatal farce of the "hunger-strike" and by guaranteeing security of life and property to all law-abiding citizens. The Lord Mayor of Cork wrote to Mr. Duke concerning three "hunger-strikers." Mr. Duke replied that physical debility due to wilful refusal of food "ought not to be regarded" as a ground for release. The newspapers which printed his letter yesterday recorded also the fact that the three "hunger-strikers" had been released. If Mr. Duke wants to restore the reality and efficacy of punishment for crime, he will announce that physical debility due to deliberate self-starvation "will not be regarded" as a ground for release, and, having made that announcement, he will stick to his guns. If he wants to restore order throughout the country and to make life tolerable for decent citizens in certain parts of the South and West, he will make haste to remove the impression—now shared by innocent and guilty alike—that the police have been hampered in their efforts to prevent or resist crime. Mr. Duke says in his letter to Mr. Solliott that "it is not possible, even for an excellent force like the Royal Irish Constabulary, to anticipate and prevent every act of lawlessness of which organised wrong-doers may be capable." That is true; but is it right that the police should be apparently impotent spectators of acts of flagrant lawlessness? In dozens of recent cases lands have been seized with impunity "in the name of the Irish Republic" under the very eyes of the police. The impression is general that, in its desire to make an "atmosphere" for the Convention, the Executive has instructed the police authorities to interfere as little as possible with "political" offences. Mr. Duke admits, however, that nine-tenths of the current lawlessness has a political object of the most dangerous kind. The present confusion about the functions of the police is unfair to that fine body and to its officers, and cannot be good for their morale; and it is a direct incentive to disorder. Mr. Duke's promise that the police will do their utmost to protect the public. We should like an equally definite assurance that the Executive will not interfere with the legitimate work of the police.

If Mr. Duke does his duty, he need have no fear that the majority of Irishmen will misunderstand his motives. The authors and abettors of lawlessness are a minority in the country. Their seeming domination of certain parts of Ireland is due to the fact that they have established a reign of terror, from which the people would rejoice to be relieved. The Government is now told by some politicians and newspapers that its belated recognition of the present dangers is a symptom of "reaction," and that it, and those who support it, are enemies of an Irish settlement. If this charge has any semblance of plausibility, the Executive which has allowed things to come to such a pass that drastic action is inevitable must take most of the blame. The majority of Irishmen, however, realises that Ireland's first need to-day is the speedy restoration of law and order. We are convinced that, in our recent articles, we have spoken for all the stable elements—Unionist and Nationalist—in the country. They, like ourselves, want a political settlement, pray for the success of the Convention, and see clearly that no settlement can be established on a foundation of anarchy. They are concerned for the good name of Ireland. They desire that nothing shall happen in Ireland to divert the British Government's attention from the great tasks of war. Their wealth, and their children's prospects, are intertwined with Irish trade and industry. They expect a future of high material prosperity for Ireland after the war. Like other decent people in all civilised countries, they want to live peacefully, securely, and on good terms with their neighbours. All these interests and hopes, political, social, and economic—the welfare of Ireland, and the welfare of every Irish citizen—are threatened by the present conspiracy of lawlessness and outrage. The menace has become intolerable, and the Irish Government, by removing it, will win the gratitude of the country. If it fails, it must make room quickly for a stronger and wiser Administration.

Italy's Aims.

The Italian Chamber of Deputies has again declared its confidence in the Government of Signor Orlando by the decisive majority of 340 votes to 44. The vote of confidence followed speeches in which Baron Sonnino, the Foreign Minister, and Signor Orlando defined and defended the war aims of Italy. Those aims had been attacked, on the one hand, by Socialist parties, which regarded them as imperialistic and anti-democratic, and, on the other hand, by the influential "Nationalist" party, which regarded them as inadequate for safeguarding Italy's political interests and military security. Baron Sonnino said that Italy demanded no privileged situation for "an offensive against anyone whatsoever, but simply conditions which are indispensable for our reasonable security." He went on to assert in explicit terms the necessity of avoiding the formation of any claims which would sow the seeds of dispute with the Southern Slav nationalities of Austria-Hungary. He insisted that, "at those places where the populations are of a mixed character, an equitable delimitation can only be obtained by means of mutual concession and reciprocal sacrifice, under penalty of creating a state of affairs leading to future conflicts." His emphatic declaration that it was "to the vital interest of Italy and the Southern Slav nationalities to establish on unshakable foundations mutual collaboration in political and economic fields" was received with great approval. Much of the atmosphere of doubt and tension which has hitherto surrounded the question of Italy's war aims has been, perhaps, inseparable from a gradual new evolution in her foreign policy. It has always to be remembered, in the first place, that, while the chief enemy of the other Allies is Germany, Italy's historic enemy is Austria-Hungary. Since she threw off the Hapsburg yoke and achieved unity and independence her whole foreign policy has been directed towards improving her own unstable situation vis-à-vis that Empire. The rapid growth and strong assertion of the national idea in Austria-Hungary during the war introduced a wholly novel conception into Italy's international relations to which she was bound, sooner or later, to adjust her policy. Baron Sonnino's speech, however, suggests that the adjustment is virtually complete, and that Italy is adopting a policy which reverts to her oldest political traditions and to the teachings of Mazzini. It is a policy in which expediency coincides with principle—full acceptance and encouragement by Italy of the idea of "self-determination" for the subject nationalities of Austria-Hungary, and the establishment of an accord between herself and them concerning their mutual relations and their future status.

Rations and Taxes.

One aspect of the introduction of food rations in Great Britain, which came into force yesterday, may not be generally realised until Mr. Bonar Law makes his next Budget statement. The system of rationing applies to about one-third of the total population of Great Britain. It is to be gradually, but as rapidly as possible, extended over the whole country. There are two aspects of this matter which are doubtless engaging the attention of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. In the first place, if, as is probable, the rationing system is shortly extended to include dutiable articles of consumption, it will involve a certain loss of revenue to the Treasury. In the next place, now that quantities and prices of the staple articles of diet are both fixed, domestic expenditure will be greatly reduced in all except the poorest households. A certain amount of income will thereby be liberated. The Chancellor of the Exchequer already knows, or should know, what every man's income is to a sovereign: he will now know also what every household costs in rations. He will thus be able to estimate more easily his power to obtain additional taxation from the unspent margin. The citizen, therefore, may find himself caught both ways. His household's consumption of food will be drastically reduced; but what he saves in income in this respect is likely to go, not into his own pocket, but into that of the State. It is not a very cheerful prospect, but victory is not to be won without its price.

RING OUTRAGE IN CLARE

TWO POLICEMEN SHOT.

HEIR RIFLES CARRIED AWAY.

Another daring outrage typical of the roughly disorganised state in which the ty Clare is at the present time was com- ted near Ennistymon on Sunday, in which o constables received bad revolver wounds. y were Constables Sullivan and Dennehy, Derrymore, which was established about ee years ago for the protection of a family med Marrinan, whose connection as Crown nesses with the Derrymore murder case, ne on a man named Kildea was shot dead at the rehold of their house three years ago, who within the memory of the public. Two men med Ryan and Hegarty were arrested for at crime, but the jury disagreed at the trial rce times—once in Dublin, twice in Cork, and were subsequently sent by the Crown to merick.

On Sunday Michael Marrinan went, as usual, Mass at Ennistymon with Constables Sullivan Mac Carthy as escort. When they were re- ning thereby at a certain point of the road, urning, about a mile and a half outside the graining farm, recently set on the cheap system. Six policemen were unable to protect the driver. The crowd unable to proceed towards Castlefergus, where there is a temporary police barrack. When near the front and the crowd is said to have shouted— "Close in and kill them," and began to close in on the escort. Constable Sullivan fired on the crowd, who retired to fire. The threatening demeanour of the crowd continuing, the police fired on them, and it is stated that a number were wounded, the men through the neck and another in the head. The crowd scattered, and the police then being removed by friends. The wounded are being removed to the scene later, and arrests are expected.

LATER PARTICULARS.

THREE MEN WOUNDED.

Our Ennis correspondent, writing from Ennis yesterday, says:—Further particulars of the shooting affair at Castlefergus on Saturday afternoon show that at least three of the cattle-driving party were badly wounded, and one of them's life is in danger. John Murrinan and James Liddy were brought to the County Infirmary last night for treatment by Dr. J. Mc- Mac Clancy, surgeon of the institution. Murrinan, who underwent a term of imprisonment some time ago, is found to have received a compound comminuted fracture of the left arm, and will have to undergo an operation as the wound is very jagged. Liddy has received a bullet near the left elbow. The bullet passed clean through the arm entered the back at the right side, and passed through the muscles of the back, and out at the right side, without injury to any important organ. A third man, named Ryan, a herdsman's house was fired into at the time of the shooting, and it is feared is near the scene of the shooting, and it is feared that he will not recover. The bullet passed through his arm, entered the spinal column, causing injuries from which he is suffering severely. He was attended by Dr. P. J. Fitzgerald last night, and Dr. MacGinn motored to see him this morning. It is feared he will not survive.

There are conflicting reports about the occurrence. The police state that a voice distinctly heard from the crowd: "There are only six of them, kill them and take the barrack," referring to the Castlefergus Barrack, near which the shooting took place, and that after firing the shots over the heads of the crowd, several of the latter rushed forward at them, which did not deter the police from firing into the crowd, the result indicated above. It is stated that with the earlier shots were scattered the heads of cattle, as the noise of the bullets heads of cattle, as the noise of the bullets was audible. The police warning that they would fire if the crowd persisted in driving out of the cattle seems to have had no attention paid to it.

The party of police present at the shooting numbered six. Three of them, from Clare Castle Barracks, had followed the cattle which were driven off the lands of Manus, until they met three more constables from the Castlefergus Barracks, close to which the second cattle-drive was to take place. Then a Volunteer named Murray, a Volunteer commandant from Newmarket-on-Fergus, had his hat riddled with bullets, but escaped without injury.

DARING ROBBERY IN CLARE.

£5,500 TAKEN FROM A BANK MANAGER.

An Ennis message yesterday records a daring highway robbery.

While Mr. Sanders, manager of the Munster and Leinster Bank at Ennistymon, was proceeding to the fair of Kilfenora in a motor car, he was held up by a party of men, and money to the amount of £5,500 taken from him.

He was ordered to return home by a different road.

TWO RIFLES STOLEN.

At Corofin on Sunday night, a farmer's house was raided and two rifles stolen.

BATON CHARGE IN COUNTY ROSCOMMON.

Our Boyle correspondent, telegraphing last night, says:—There were exciting scenes to-day at Keadue over the residence of the Earl of Kingston. The local Sinn Feiners entered on the lands of Greyfield, which were purchased a couple of years ago by Mr. John Keaveney, the well-liked Irish League organiser for North Roscommon. A large batch of police were hurried out from Boyle, and as soon as they arrived in Keadue all further interference with Greyfield was brought to an end.

Later reports state that there were exciting occurrences. Mr. G. Plunkett, son of Count Plunkett, was present with the Sinn Feiners, as was also a Catholic curate. Mr. Plunkett was injured in the baton charge, and there were a number of Sinn Feiners. These men failed to appear at the Police Court on Saturday, and warrants were issued for their apprehension. They were lodged in the Bridewell, and will be charged at the Police Court to-day under the 1duence of the Realm Act with having certain plans and drawings in their possession.

THE £50,000 EDUCATION GRANT.

DEPUTATION TO THE CHIEF SECRETARY.

A deputation representative of assistant teachers in secondary schools assembled at the Chief Secretary yesterday at his office, Dublin Castle, to lay before him their views with respect to the proposal to allocate in Ireland the sum of £50,000 for the purpose of education in Ireland. The deputation was constituted of Messrs. R. Watson (chairman) and J. J. Kane (hon. sec.), representing the Association of Secondary Teachers; Mr. C. H. Beaven (chairman), representing the Irish Head Masters' Association; and Miss Moffett, representing the Secondary Teachers' Association.

The proceedings were private, but one of the members of the deputation informed the Press representatives that the Chief Secretary and the Duke their position that the Exchequer Grant in England having been devoted to increasing the salaries of the teachers, an equivalent grant in Ireland ought to be used for the same purpose. The deputation asked for the same stand to be taken by the Irish Executive.

Mr. Duke, No official report was issued to the Press.

SECONDARY TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

A special meeting of the Leinster Women's Branch of the Secondary Teachers' Association, Ireland, was held at Rathmines School on Saturday to consider the recently published rules for the application of the proposed grant of £50,000.

The following resolution was passed unanimously:—

That we, the Leinster Branch of the Association of Secondary Teachers, Ireland, are in full accordance with the principle of increasing the salaries of teachers in accordance with the length of service in Ireland.

A Vienna telegram says that the German representatives on Monday had the first meeting of the Austrian Army Council in connection with the formation of a Scottish regiment for active service.

DR. COYNE AND THE RAID ON ROCKINGHAM.

"A DISREPUTABLE AND COWARDLY ACT."

In connection with the recent raid for arms on Rockingham House, Boyle, Most Rev. Dr. Coyne, Roman Catholic Bishop of Elphin, has sent the following letter to Very Rev. T. Flanagan, P.P. of Cootehall and Creeana:—

MY DEAR FATHER FLANAGAN,—It was with feelings of humiliation and pain that I read the report, contained in the daily Press of the outrage perpetrated on Rockingham House in search of arms yesterday morning. I should be sorry and sorry to believe that any of your parishioners were implicated in the disreputable and cowardly attempt to rob a defenceless gentleman at a time when the owner was from home. It has made the rounds of the Press, and has been always considered a disreputable act to be absent on the sick—to him always considered a disreputable act to rob him of his private property. The genial—of spending food for the needy. The outrage on his household, in the circumstances, has left a blot and a cloud on the fair fame of setting the Convention on a more hopeful course. It is understood that the Chairman, Lord Loudon yesterday, carries with him suggestions formulated by the Prime Minister, which, in effect, is an appeal to secure peace by continuing the war. The movers of this new experiment in peace by negotiation signified the happiest moments of their lives these sentiments. On the whole, public opinion is likely to prefer the method of peaceful industry, not merely by Mr. Lloyd George or Mr. Wilson, but by British and Allied statesmen in conference. That method—a plain statement of democratic war aims, a determination of enemy to reply to them, a deliberation before them—differs altogether from the aspirations of Essex Hall.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Lord Jellicoe has chosen the title of Viscount Jellicoe of Scapa.

Earl of Derby, Secretary of State for War, called at Buckingham Palace yesterday, and had an audience of the King.

Supreme Court of Queensland are again urging the Commonwealth Government to permit the export of hardwood to Germany for paper-making.

Milling was ushered in at Smithfield Market yesterday, when 1,000 cattle were offered for sale. There was a fairly plentiful supply of sheep, and prices were firm. Pigs were 1s. 6d. per cwt. dearer. It is stated that there is sufficient supply of meat to last for a fortnight, and that there is a guaranteed supply for the day.

Lieutenant-Colonel Tesse and Major Kenyon Kaye Kenyon Kaye, who were taken prisoners at Gallipoli, and who were taken to Constantinople, did not know that so many of their men had been killed, but there can be no doubt about it.

The Emperor William before the world. We must be on no brutality will be instead by Germany in this war. Remember there is nothing Kaiserism is not capable of trying in the hope of victory. The talents and ability and organisation of the German Emperor are the personality of the German people, dominating like a mesmeric influence, and he will not blind us to the fact that he is the head of the system which has brought the world to a despair and misery such as it never knew since the dawn of history. We must not let the sacred utterances disclose the real character of the conqueror, of a man intensely selfish for earthly fame and a conspicuous place in the gallery of human events; envious, in the great name of the great, his ears so open for admiration and applause that they hear the great long-drawn wail of human agony around the world. His eyes are blinded with the sheen of his own glory that do not see the mutilated corpses, the homeless children, the hunger, the incalculable pestilence, the tears that sweep the earth. From the sands of Africa to the frozen plains of the north from Siberia to Saskatchewan, from Trieste, from Alaska to Afghanistan—the cry of millions upon millions of desolate

ALLIED AIMS.

Lansdowne, says The Times, may well be saved from his friends. His own nowadays is to be regarded as the unforerunner of Mr. Lloyd George and Allies in their statement of Allied aims. Lord Beauchamp, Lord Buckmaster, Lord Sydenham, and the other supporters of protest meeting in the Essex Hall are determined by him an out-and-out Pacifist. They pin to file whole implication of his original to which was, in effect, an appeal to secure peace by continuing the war. The movers of this new experiment in peace by negotiation signified the happiest moments of their lives these sentiments. On the whole, public opinion is likely to prefer the method of peaceful industry, not merely by Mr. Lloyd George or Mr. Wilson, but by British and Allied statesmen in conference. That method—a plain statement of democratic war aims, a determination of enemy to reply to them, a deliberation before them—differs altogether from the aspirations of Essex Hall.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

A CRITICAL DAY IN IRELAND.

The Irish Convention, says The Times, resumes this morning after the London "conversations" between the Cabinet and the delegates. It is a critical moment, as everyone knows. It is a critical moment, as everyone feels. It is the prospects are not improved by deliberate efforts of ultramontanism in Ireland to defeat the settlement impossible. The Convention must, at least, stood nearer to an agreement than it stands to-day, and the exact point of particular failure will be clearly defined when the course of this proceedings is finally reviewed. But it does not seem to be necessary. The inference is that it is the main difficulties of the situation, and the main difficulties of the eleventh hour outrage on his household, in the circumstances, there is still just a chance at the eleventh hour of setting the Convention on a more hopeful course. It is understood that the Chairman, Lord Loudon yesterday, carries with him suggestions formulated by the Prime Minister, which, in effect, is an appeal to secure peace by continuing the war. The movers of this new experiment in peace by negotiation signified the happiest moments of their lives these sentiments. On the whole, public opinion is likely to prefer the method of peaceful industry, not merely by Mr. Lloyd George or Mr. Wilson, but by British and Allied statesmen in conference. That method—a plain statement of democratic war aims, a determination of enemy to reply to them, a deliberation before them—differs altogether from the aspirations of Essex Hall.

ENEMY RAIDS ON WESTERN FRONT.

ARTILLERY ALSO BUSY.

BRITISH AIRMEN'S GOOD WORK.

Raids by the enemy were again the feature of the British front in Flanders. These were attempted at Armentières, St. Quentin, and north of Passchendaele.

The enemy's artillery was also active south of Cambrai, in the Scarpe Valley, and at Armentières and Ypres.

Our airmen were very active, and successfully bombed many points behind the enemy's lines.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

Monday, 9.30 a.m.—Early this morning a hostile raiding party was repulsed with losses east of Armentières. The enemy's artillery has shown some activity south-west of Cambrai and in the Messines sector.

Monday, 5.40 p.m.—Early this morning a party of the enemy attempted to raid one of our posts in the neighbourhood of St. Quentin, but was driven off by rifle fire and bombs before reaching our wire. Another hostile raiding party which attacked one of our posts north of Passchendaele was also successfully repulsed. A few prisoners have been captured by our troops on the northern portion of our front. The enemy's artillery has shown some activity south of Cambrai, in the Scarpe Valley, south of Armentières, and north-east of Ypres.

Our artillery engaged and dispersed hostile working parties in the neighbourhood of La Bassée.

Aviation.—On the 24th, in spite of bad weather, our aeroplanes carried out one or two reconnaissances and observed for the artillery. Bombs were dropped by us on various targets, including hostile billets, transport, and working parties. Two or our machines are missing. After dark our night flying squadrons dropped over 200 bombs on hostile aerodromes near Courtrai and on billets north-east of St. Quentin. All machines returned.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Monday Afternoon.—North of the Allette we successfully carried out a raid in the region of Ures, and brought back 16 prisoners and one machine gun. The night was quiet everywhere else, except in Champagne, where, to the east of Tahure, and to the north and south of the Doller, where the artillery was very active.

Monday Night.—There is nothing to report except bombardments on both sides in Champagne and in the region of the Chaume Wood.

GERMAN OFFICIAL.

Monday Afternoon.—There have been a great many artillery and trench mortar duels, and numerous patrol encounters.

COMING GERMAN OFFENSIVE.

An Exchange Paris telegram of yesterday says the Matin observes that to-day (Monday) is the first day of the full moon, and that in the past the offensives have always been entered upon by the aid of the moonlight. Therefore it is possible that the offensive of the German offensive is now be imminent.

THE ITALIAN FRONT.

Italian Official.—There was lively reciprocal cannonading from the Adige to the Brenta, especially in the region north-east of the French. At Lagaro (south of Camonica) and at Rivalta (Brenta) hostile patrols were repulsed. On the left bank of the Piave a hostile patrol attacked a body of the enemy's cavalry, causing considerable losses.

At Capo Sile hostile parties, who, over a large tract of the river, were trying to attack the bridgehead, were promptly dispersed. Artillery activity, which was particularly great during the day there was repressed. Four of the enemy's aeroplanes were brought down by the French in the course of the day, one struck by our artillery fire, one by our machine guns, and two by our aviators. Mount Grappa, the Asiago plateau, and the Monfenera batteries, came down aflame near Col Moschin (south-east of Bassano).

Our artillery fire against the stations of Mattarello (south of Trento) and of Primolano, which is a junction of railways, has severely damaged the two stations.

The Italian defeat not only secures access to the Grappa and the Dead Sea, but gives to the Italians the command of the Asiago plateau, and thus of the roads of the Hedjas, who is reported to be advancing northwards.

THE NEW ROMAN CATHOLIC BISHOP OF FERNS.

Yesterday, in the Cathedral, Enniscorthy, the Most Rev. Patrick Finegan, D.D., was consecrated Bishop of Ferns. The Most Rev. James Glennon, D.D., is a native of the town of Wexford, and received his education at St. Peter's College, Wexford, and at Maynooth College, where he was made President of the College in 1903, a position which he filled with success until 1909, when he was appointed Parish Priest of Blackwater. He subsequently became Parish Priest of Rosslare, and was appointed Bishop of Kildare and Leighlin in 1915. Bishop of Ferns, and the Most Rev. Dr. Cohalan, Bishop of Cork, and Most Rev. THE GERMANS IN RUSSIA.

DORPAT AND PERNAU TAKEN.

RUSSIAN STAFF CAPTURED.

Yesterday afternoon's German communiqué—

Army Group of Eisbhorn.—Our troops have occupied Pernau. An Esthonian battalion which was there has placed itself under the Germanic command.

Yesterday morning Dorpat was taken by the 15th Storming Company and the 1st Squadron of the 19th Hussar Regiment in advance of their division. On the way there 5,000 prisoners were taken, and many hundreds of automobiles were captured.

Dorpat, therefore, has covered over 218 kilometres in five and a half days.

Army Group of Lindgen.—In Revel the whole Staff of the Russian Special Army fell into our hands. The Commander-in-Chief has fled. Advanced troops, with Ukrainian troops, established contact there with Ukrainian troops.

Last night's German communiqué stated:—

The town and fortress of Revel was occupied to-day at 10.30 in the morning, after a battle, by our troops.

KRYLENKO AND ARMISTICE.

A Stockholm telegram (Press Association war special) of Sunday says:—

The Bolshevik Commander-in-Chief, Krylenko, has issued the following message, addressed to the General Staff of the German Government, Berlin:—

Supposing that all reasons for the continuation of war should disappear from the moment the Soviets of the People's Commissioners declare that it accepts the conditions of peace proposed by the German Government, I request you hereby to reply to me whether the German High Command takes a similar view, and, if so, whether it considers that from the moment the proposals are accepted the armistice becomes automatically re-established in the same conditions as those which restored on the conditions before the state of war was restored on February 18 last by the German High Command.

LENIN URGES ACCEPTANCE OF GERMAN TERMS.

A Reuter Petrograd telegram of Sunday says:—

The Central Executive Committee of the Soviets has agreed to the German conditions of peace, with 29 abstentions.

The Petrograd Telegraph Agency states that the plenary sitting of the Council of the Workmen's Committee of Councils of the Soviets of Workmen's, Soldiers' and Peasants' Delegates, which opened at 4 o'clock this morning in the Tauride Palace, when M. Sveidlof presided, was marked by a feeling among the Bolsheviki that the situation is critical.

Lenin, in a long speech, pressed for the acceptance of the German conditions, however oppressive and humiliating they were. He said:—

"Their knees are on our throats. This must be said," and our position is desperate. Peace must be accepted as a respite, enabling us to organise resistance to the bourgeoisie and Imperialism. The proletariat of the whole world will come to our aid, and then the whole world will triumph."

Among the Majority speakers the leader of the Internationalist Party, Martoff, contended that the proposed peace meant the end of the Russian Revolution, peace and the ruin of their political independence, and that they would be the signature of Germany's authority to the Bolshevik Government.

M. Zinoviev, supporting Lenin, denied there was danger of the Soviet authority being overthrown. He maintained that the country, established on the Bolshevik principles, was firmly supported by the Anarchist spokesman opposed peace with the Bourgeoisie.

The Bolsheviks announce that troops have entered Ristoff, and that fighting is proceeding in the streets.

PETROGRAD IN PERIL.

Reuter's Agency learns that, according to an official telegram from Tokio, the Allied Embassies at Petrograd have met and decided to abandon the Russian capital. The American and Japanese Ambassadors will travel via Riberia.

There is no confirmation that any have actually left the capital.

A Paris telegram of yesterday says:—The newspapers, commenting on the Russian peace terms with Germany, say it means conquest, and is something worse. History offers no example of such complete servile compliance.

The Humanité says it is impossible to imagine more humiliating conditions than those which the Germans are dictating. Japan sees a chance.

The Germans and their agents are in Petrograd, where is the only waiting for the signal to take action.

The Excelsior publishes an interview with M. Efremoff, ex-Minister of Justice in the Kerensky Cabinet, who described the terrible situation of the Russian people during the first anniversary of the war, which, he said, was to the screen deplorable. M. Efremoff hopes that the Allies will intervene to save his country from the domination of Germany, and organise Russia against Germany. He says that, on the contrary, Germany may organise Russia against Germany.

DEMAND OF ODESSA UNEMPLOYED.

A meeting of unemployed at Odessa on February 8th adopted the following resolution:—

"We demand that all workers, manufacturers, and proprietors shall pay to-day's bourgeoisie refuse to pay it themselves. We demand that the Council of Workers' and Soldiers' Committee of ten later formed a meeting with representatives of the banks, factories, and commercial undertakings, and it was decided that the sum of 10,000,000 roubles should be paid to the workers' organisations, on condition that all the workers' organisations and Peasants and Soldiers' Committees granted the capitalist representatives the right to distribute payments of the sum demanded. The proposal was accepted, and immediately the sum of two and a half million roubles for the unemployed of canal construction.

COUNT HERTLING AND RUSSIA'S ACCEPTANCE.

According to a telegram from Berlin of Monday's date, Count Hertling, speaking in the Reichstag yesterday, said that the Petrograd Government had received, that the Petrograd Government had accepted the German conditions of peace and had sent representatives to Brest-Litovsk for further negotiations. Accordingly, said the Chancellor, our delegates travelled thither on Saturday evening. It is possible that there will be a dispute about details, but the main thing has been attained. The will to peace has been publicly announced from the Russian side, and our conditions have been accepted. The conclusion of peace must ensue within a very short time.

RETURN OF A GERMAN RAIDER.

A Berlin official telegram says the auxiliary cruiser Wolf has returned home after a fifteen months' cruise in the Atlantic, Indian, and Pacific Oceans. The Kaiser has sent a telegram of welcome to the commander of the Wolf, and has conferred the Order Pour le Mérite on him. A number of Iron Crosses have also been conferred on the officers and crew. The official German statement further says that the Wolf, which was commanded by Captain Nerger, inflicted the greatest damage on the enemy by sinking 60 ships, including the most valuable cargo and cargo. The world freight of more than four hundred thousand tons. The crews of other ships, including the most valuable cargo and cargo. The world freight of several guns and a great quantity of valuable ammunition, such as medicines, cocoa, sugar, coconuts, leather, and rubber, to the value of many millions of marks. Further details will be published later. The British vessel Turritella, which was captured by the Wolf in February, 1917, was equipped as a second auxiliary.

The Admiralty announces that, with reference to the German communiqué as to the return to the German auxiliary cruiser Wolf after a fifteen months' cruise, that it is presumed that in that period the Wolf sank in the Indian and Pacific Oceans eleven vessels, including an unarmed sailing ship, which was captured by the Wolf in February last year, and the German prize crew placed on board. The Turritella was equipped for mine-laying and was sunk a few days later was encountered

THE NEW BISHOP OF FUH-KIEN.

The Rev. John Hind, M.A., T.C.D., Headmaster of the Middle School, Trinity College, Fow-Chow, has been appointed Bishop of Fuh-Kien by the Archbishop of Canterbury, on the resignation of Bishop Price. Mr. Hind's appointment will give rise to great satisfaction in many parts of Ireland, where he is well known. He comes of an Irish family, his father, Mr. James R. Hind, living in Belfast, where Mr. Hind himself was brought up. After passing through Trinity College, Dublin, he was ordained in 1902 by the Bishop of Killaloe for service in the mission field, and he went to Fuh-Ning, in China, as a member of the Dublin University Mission to China. After he had spent seven years in pastoral work, with some oversight of the boys' school. In 1909 Mr. Hind came home, on the death of his wife, and for two years worked as curate of St. Mary's, Belfast. But in 1911, at the invitation of the University Mission staff, who judged highly his earnestness and capabilities, he returned to China, this time to Fow-Chow, to take charge of the Middle School. This school, to be incorporated in Trinity College, Fow-Chow, the great educational centre for the diocese, was then added to the scheme of the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission. There he has laboured ever since. His fellow-workers among the Irish missionary staff in Fuh-Chow will be sorry to lose him, and his promotion will create a vacancy very hard to fill, but it will be a great pleasure to them to work under a bishop whose sterling qualities they have proved during so many years, and who understands so thoroughly the peculiar needs and problems of the Dublin University Mission. The future bishop's sister, Miss A. Hind, is also a Dublin University Mission missionary, working in the Fuh-Ning under the Ladies' Auxiliary. It is probable that Mr. Hind will come home in the summer to be consecrated, and, perhaps, it will then be possible for him to make a brief visit to see him. Mr. Hind is at present "own missionary" for Nenagh parish.

PRAYER FOR IRELAND.

A special meeting for prayer for Ireland will be held on Monday, March 18th, at 3 o'clock, in the Metropolitan Hall, Lower Abbey street, Dublin. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Evangelical Alliance, and will be open to the public. Fuller particulars will be announced in our advertisement columns.

DUBLIN WHITE CROSS ASSOCIATION CONFERENCE.

A Conference, summoned by the Dublin White Cross Association, was held in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, 43 Upper Sackville street, Dublin, on Saturday, from 3 to 6. There was a very representative attendance, which included amongst others Chaplain Mason, J.P.; Prof. Carpenter, Col. W. Johnston, Revs. Canon Orr, Canon Hayden, Canon H. B. Kennedy, Dr. Denham Osborne, W. Proctor, W. J. Bridge, T. C. Hammond, Dr. Scriver, E. Connell, H. Taylor, G. Townshend, E. W. Greene, R. H. W. Simpson, Messrs. C. G. S. Mosse, R. M'Vittie, M.D.; A. Magee, Cuply, Gen. Boyd, W. A. Breakey, W. H. Fry, W. S. Kelly, J. H. Gibson, Dr. Gillespie, J. M. Wright, T. Coulter, T.C., R. Hinde, J. Lyons Esqs., F. C. Sprecah, H. O'Connor, Mrs. Hackett, Mrs. Sheranan (Hon. Secs.), etc.

The chair was taken by Mr. Charles Eason, C.B., subsequently by Prof. Carpenter, who referred to the purpose of the gathering, namely, to consider what practical means could be taken to meet the special purity in the city. The first paper, on "The Importance and Necessity of Work Among Men," was read by the Rev. John Connell. Having dealt with the "social evil" and the drink curse, which caused the danger of impurity to the community, and pointed out some of the alarming figures contained in the return for the year 1916 of venereal disease, which declared that ten per cent. of city populations is tainted with venereal disease, and that in Dublin the death rate due to venereal disease is 365 per million, while that of the whole islander of Ireland is 54." The second paper was by Mr. Wm. Corbett, of Dublin, who read the report of the Vigilance Committee of the Church of Ireland Purity Standpoint," by Mr. W. J. M. Conlee, T.C. He reviewed the work actually being done by the Vigilance Committee of the Church of Ireland, which he said he (Mr. Corbett) read the third paper on "How to Advance the Cause of Social Purity in Dublin." After reviewing the history of the Association from its inception, he expressed the opinion that the work could and must have been done, enough energy had not been shown in reaching men personally. He advocated the appointment of wardens of the White Cross Association in parishes, or using existing men's societies for purity meetings. There was an interesting discussion following the papers, in which many took part. It was suggested that a Men's Purity Council, composed of representatives of men's purity bodies of the women's patrols at work now, might usefully be organised. Resolutions, which were moved, to arrange for purity meetings for men, and to supply and circulate purity literature.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

LIGHTS ON MOTOR CARS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I am directed by the Chief Commissioner of Police to inform you that he has been in consultation with the officials of the Irish Automobile Club as to the most effective method of obscuring lights on motor cars, as required by the Lights (Ireland) Order, and he thinks that the following brief details of the method which he regards as most effective and convenient may be of interest to the public:—

A cap or disc of opaque material fitted near front glass of lamp, preventing passage of light, save through apertures cut as follows:—Six circular apertures, one-half inch in diameter, spaced approximately evenly round the disc, so that no portion of any of the apertures is nearer the centre of the disc than one-quarter the diameter of the effective front of lamp, if circular, or one-quarter the longer side, if rectangular.

The exact description and sketch plan of this device is shown at p.p. 48 and 50 of the Royal Automobile Club's Year Book, 1917, and specimens can be seen by persons interested at the Irish Automobile Club's premises, Dawson street.—Yours, etc.,

W. A. MAGILL, Secretary.

WAR SAVINGS ASSOCIATIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It is earnestly to be hoped that the formation of a War Savings Committee in Ireland, which was the object of the two meetings held in Dublin last Thursday, as reported in your issue of Friday, may result in a more general and widespread effort to induce money in this country for an object in which all ought to be—and, indeed, must be—so deeply interested. Those who, like the Girls' Friendly Society and the Young Women's Christian Association, have been already for some time working War Savings Associations in connection with the National War Savings Committee in London, will cordially welcome the action of this body in deciding to establish here a Dublin Central Committee in connection with which various bodies, outside and distinct from the two referred to, can co-operate in their good work. Indeed, it is satisfactory to learn that one such, the Alexandra College, has already, under the guidance and influence of its distinguished Principal, made a good start.

The Y.W.C.A., with its numerous branches throughout Ireland, should have no hesitation in following promptly and with vigour the example of the War Savings Association already started by the Council and working in Dublin City, County, and district, which already numbers over 260 members; and valuable pecuniary results may confidently be expected from concerted action by an influential body over so wide an area. The Council of the Y.W.C.A. has, through its branches, opportunities of encouraging a large number of members, from motives both of patriotism and of self-interest, in the first place, to save, and then to invest their savings under conditions which, both as to the rate of interest and as to the security offered, are of an extraordinarily favourable character.

We may trust that these considerations so eloquently and persuasively urged at Thursday's meeting may induce many in our land to take their part in this great patriotic movement, and thus help to win the war.—Yours, etc.,

HOA C. ORPEN, Hon. Secretary.

Our War Savings Association here was inaugurated in September, 1916.—Yours, etc.,

PRAYER FOR THE CROPS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Some of us have felt that the burden of responsibility for providing food for the nation must not rest heavily on the farmers, and that many of them would welcome a movement on the part of the public to help them, by coming together to pray publicly for a blessing on their work and on the crops. So we have set on foot the petition of which I enclose a copy, and are sending it to every parish so far as we can, in this diocese; and to many of our friends in other parts of Ireland. Although only just started, the response has been great. We have free copies of the petition which I shall be glad to supply to anyone who would like to join the movement.—Yours, etc.,

OLD MEN'S ASYLUM.

ANNUAL MEETING OF SUPPORTERS.

The annual meeting of supporters of the Old Men's Asylum for respectable, reduced aged Protestants took place yesterday afternoon at the Asylum, Northbrook Road, Lower Park, Dublin.

The 107th annual report was read by the Secretary, Mr. H. Lombard Ball. The directors regretted to be obliged to show an increased adverse balance, which now amounted to £362. The latter of this debt weighed heavily upon the Institution, and restricted the election of new applicants. To enable the trustees and governors to carry out efficiently, as they desired to do, the beneficent objects of the charity, and meet the much higher cost of maintenance, the annual income required to be increased by £150 to £300. They felt constrained, therefore, to appeal yet more urgently to the friends of the Asylum, to the Protestant merchants of the city, and to the widow and children of charitable Protestant public, to assist them in wiping out this debt, and in raising, for the year 1918, the income of inmates in the Institution. During the year 1917 three candidates were elected. At the close of the year there were 35 aged men in the Asylum.

The Visiting Physician (Mr. F. L'Estrange Ledwich) reported that there were seven deaths in the Asylum during the year. With this exception there had been an unusual degree of health amongst the inmates. Owing to the restrictions caused by the war the dieting of the old men presented some difficulty, but that they had enough and sufficient and wholesome food was proved by their good health.

The Hon. Treasurer, Mr. Geo. P. Bester, presented the abstract of cash account. He said he thought that the public did not know enough now about this Institution, and how it helped the aged.

The Hon. Secretary, Mr. George Bennett, speaking of present necessity, said they were forced to make a stand up and do their duty fearlessly, and not consider the income they could not get one thing if they were well off compared with those across the water.

The Chairman of the Committee of Management, Mr. Edward Robinson (who was now recovering), moved the adoption of the report.

The report was adopted.

Mr. Joseph Hone, M.P., Freeman Deane, seconded by Mr. Bennett, the meeting agreed that the Asylum was deserving of support.

Mr. Edward Robinson proposed to thank the Press for its support, spoke first of the officers of the Fund, and of Mr. Flaherty, coal merchant, to all that had been said and not feel satisfied with the officers. There was no room for improvement.

GAIETY THEATRE.

"DAMAGED GOODS."

Adults only were admitted to the Gaiety Theatre last evening, when "Damaged Goods," "the great play on the social evil," by P. Brieux, was produced. Curtis crowded the theatre in every part, except in the gallery, which was apparently closed in case of disturbance. There was slight fear of disturbance, as the play is one which appeals only to the select few. The play, from a purely medical standpoint and a certain type of social reformer, must be highly valuable, but from a purely, or rather impurity, into a nasty dialogue between a doctor and his patient as to the effects of the disease, the audience is treated to a long and uninteresting discussion on the evils of the results of the disease. The moment is supposed to be preached in the orthodox way, but the distasteful subject is dealt with in a manner which, according to the text, would put the sting bluntly given to the cheek of a monkey. There are, however, incidents which, from a dramatic point of view, would scarcely bear consideration; and in other respects, too, the art of M. Brieux can hardly be commended. The setting saved the piece, and amongst those who distinguished themselves were:—Messrs. F. Pauley (The Doctor), Noel Dainton (The Patient), J. A. Benham (The Father-in-Law), Hanning Monston (The Student), and Charles Phillips (A Man); and the Misses Marjorie Day, Annie Esmond, Rita Ricardo, Ruby McKay, Isobel Carnie, and Minnie Terry.

THEATRE ROYAL HIPPODROME.

The attraction at the Theatre Royal last night was Mr. P. T. Selbit's pantomime, "Aladdin." The title of the piece is a familiar one, but the production is novel in several respects. The chief commendation being that it is an all-round first-class show, and well worth sitting out. Both in the supports restrictions the scenery of a travelling pantomime cannot be very elaborate, but the craft of the stage manager has accomplished some fine effects in "make do" scenery. The costuming is also commendable, both in regard to taste, many of the costumes being beautiful in design and clever in workmanship. The comedy is a good one, and the dialogue is so skilfully blended that the idea of "farce" is evident, and the whole performance from start to finish, and is merry and bright all through. Miss Bonny Browne, in the name part, leads the fun in capital style, and she is ably seconded by Mr. Will Delmar as the Prince, and Hettie Hartley gives a new and highly amusing rendering of the familiar Widow Twankey, whose songs are pitched in a popular key. The chief jokemakers are Leo Kilroy and John C. Glass, as Chinese policemen, and Ben Taylor as Abanazar. Halfway through there is a special interlude, in which Ben Taylor, Leo Kilroy, and Donald Brown appear as Bill, and Bert. The scene is laid in the trenches, and the three heroes in khaki have a rollicking set of songs and dances, and they exchange confidences as to the war and a soldier's life, and their singing programme, on the whole scene being intensely amusing, and adding the house into roars of laughter. During the performance there is an abundance of graceful dancing and singing.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.

Mr. Roberto Lena's Company are this week presenting to the patrons of the Queen's Theatre a powerful tragedy drama, "Maria Marten; or the Murder in the Red Barn," which is said to be founded upon a crime that occurred in England a considerable time ago, and created a great sensation at the time. The incidents surrounding the occurrence and the place where it took place are vividly recorded in the drama, and are made to repeate with nerve-stirring emotion and passion. Mr. Lena assumes the role of William Corder, the man who after many escapes is finally convicted and executed for the crime. Miss Moira Reynolds takes the character of Maria Marten, the victim, and the other persons in the play are impersonated by Jack Wallis, Percy Lyndal, Burgess, Joe Moran, Bert Lena, F. Doran, Miss Edith Doran, and Miss Gertie Lena.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

There is no lack of good fun at the Empire Theatre this week, for Mr. Fred Barnes' company had a reception last evening which bodes well for a successful run to be presented by Thomas and Moylan's new farce, "Pactics." The audience at both houses could not repress their laughter at the ludicrous situations, and the acting of Mr Sinclair, who as a wandering pedagogue, down on his luck, is induced by two confidence men to pose as a doctor and a specialist in female complaints, and to undertake the treatment of Miss Bridget Cullinan, a rich old maid, who is supposed to be suffering from a nervous breakdown. Mr. Sinclair, who is afraid of neither man nor beast, and who has had a drink or two, is not the ideal person for the part, but he makes the most of it, and his antics are very amusing. Miss Kathleen Drago, as Miss Bridget Cullinan, the artful impersonator missed her mark, and showed a lack of ease at the Widow Webster, who did not understand what was going on, and who was completely taken in by Mr. Sinclair's antics. The piece, needless to say, was admirably acted by Mr. Barnes' company. Miss Vera Jerome, Miss Kathleen Drago, and Messrs. J. A. O'Rourke and Sydney Morgan. Mr. Cathal McInerney, as the principal film actor, was entitled "Badly Sold," and are rewarded with plenty of laughter. The Empire gives an unlimitable little show of his own. A young lady calling herself Stella Mills sings and dances delightfully, and the Carlton Trio (young ladies) give a very delightful musical treat.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

The attendance keeps well up to the crowded standard of the Tivoli Theatre, and the show this week is a fairly good one. One of the best of the artists on the bill is Miss Lena Ashwell, a violinist and pianist, whose well played selections were rather over the heads of the audience. The time would, perhaps, be more popular. The Melville Duo are clever dancers, and Gertie Gitana and

THE COMING of the snowdrop presages the blooming of loveliness anew, promising that Winter, even in its darkest and dreariest, is but a mantle thrown temporarily over the earth's bright beauty.

Do you realise that a poor skin is just such a temporary obscurity drawn over the beautiful complexion that is your birthright?

Just before retiring to-night, work up a warm water lather of Colleen Soap and rub it in gently with the tips of the fingers until the skin feels fresh and clean. Rinse in cooler water, and then apply quite cold water for a few minutes. Dry thoroughly with a soft towel. Continue this treatment regularly each night for a fortnight, and you will see your skin gradually regaining that finer texture, that delicacy and charm you so much desire.

Remember, however, that it is essential you use Colleen Soap, for this is the only soap in the world made entirely from pure vegetable oils and plant ash, exquisitely mild and fragrant—in scientific accord with your skin's need, and thus Tillage Agitation.—Under the auspices of a recently-formed United Irish Tillage League, a public meeting was held at Cregge, Co.
